

DAS42 ELT Reference Architecture

The following diagram details the flow of data through our preferred technological architecture. All data is captured and stored raw in a data lake, transformed as needed, and served up in a business-friendly format on demand. The result has been a highly performant and reliable infrastructure that allows data teams to focus on results and business analytics.

